In this month's edition of Parent University, we're talking about one of Forest of Stories is OPEN at all DCL locations, no ticket or registration required! Bring your sense of wonder and enjoy this! ... Douglas County Libraries: More Than Just Books and Shelves is a reality many residents overlook. Beyond rows of print, the system offers digital media, maker spaces, and community workshops that can save time and money for busy families, yet common misconceptions keep these resources underused. Most patrons assume libraries are limited to borrowing books. In Douglas County, that belief excludes free Wi-Fi, computer labs, and a growing catalog of e-books, audiobooks, and streaming movies. Another frequent error is thinking library hours are inflexible; many branches now operate with extended evenings and weekend schedules tailored to working professionals. For readers juggling work and childcare, the key is to treat the library like any other appointment. The online portal lets users place holds, renew items, and schedule pickups without leaving the house. Setting a recurring reminder on a smartphone ensures renewals happen before due dates, eliminating unexpected fines. Hands-on

4. Contextual Analysis (Continued)

Continuing our detailed review of Douglas County Libraries More Than Just Books And Shelves, we examine secondary source materials and community-driven data points:

workshops—such as 3D printing sessions, coding bootcamps for teens, and genealogy research classes—often run in short, focused bursts. Attending a single two-hour session can provide a skill set that would otherwise require a paid course, making the library an efficient upskilling venue. Through the library's partnership with platforms like OverDrive and Hoopla, members gain instant access to thousands of titles on tablets or phones. Additionally, the "Virtual Library" hub aggregates free language-learning apps, resume-builder tools, and tax-preparation software, all accessible with a library card. Most missed deadlines stem from a lack of real-time tracking. Enabling push notifications via the library app alerts users a day before an item is due. If a renewal is needed, the app often permits an automatic extension, provided the material isn't on hold for another patron. This proactive approach eliminates late fees entirely.
